WELL... MAYBE I OUGHT TO THINK IT OVER.

“WHAT’S the biggest animal in the world?” asked Sammy Squirrel.

“The whale,” said Professor Oscar Owl.

“And what’s the smallest?” asked Monroe Mouse.

“The shrew,” said Professor Owl.

“Do they ever meet up with each other?” asked Roscoe Rabbit.

“Never!” answered Professor Owl. “Well, hardly ever. The whale is a good-natured fellow who lives in the ocean, grows to be a hundred feet long, and weighs over a hundred tons. A big shrew is two inches long. He lives in the fields and woods, looks like a mouse, and has a bad temper. So much for the Facts; now for the Fancy.

“Naturally, such different creatures are not likely to meet up with each other. But I knew a whale and a shrew who became good friends. It’s hard to believe when you consider that the shrew could drown in the teardrop of a whale.

“The shrew’s name was Sidney, and he was always getting into trouble of some kind. One day, when Sidney was feeling quite mischievous, he happened to see a big spider spinning his web.

“‘Hey, there!’ said Sidney. ‘You’re not doing that right. It’s crooked.’

“‘I’ll thank you to mind your own business,’ snapped the spider.

“‘Yes, of course,’ said Sidney, ‘but I like to see things done correctly, even if it is only a silly spider web. In the first place—’

“‘Don’t step on my toes!’ warned the spider.

“‘I couldn’t if I wanted to,’ said Sidney Shrew. ‘It would take all day. Eight legs times five toes is forty toes all together!’

“The spider glared at Sidney, stopped his work, and went after him. Sidney, who was only half the size of the spider, started to run.

“‘HA! HA!’ he yelled over his shoulder. ‘You couldn’t catch a flea! Come on and catch me if you can, you insect!’

“This enraged the spider, and he went after Sidney in earnest, running as fast as his four pairs of legs could carry him. Sidney, alarmed for the first time, ran for his life.

“Just when the spider was about to grab him, Sidney turned around, gave one quick look, and then made a tremendous leap forward. BUT—HE HADN’T HAD TIME TO LOOK WHERE HE WAS LEAPING!

“And so, off he went into space! Sidney Shrew had jumped off a MILE HIGH CLIFF!

“‘Oh, my goodness!’ yelled Sidney as he fell. ‘I’ll be killed for sure!’

“DOWN, DOWN, DOWN, he went, turning over and over. On the way he had plenty of time to review the events of his past life, and to make good resolutions for the future.

"'Never again,' he said to himself, 'will I be such a pest—if I get out of this jam alive!'"

"One thing you must admit about Sidney, he had plenty of spunk.

"'Well, here I come, Mother Earth!' he shouted as he saw the ground approaching him from below. 'GOODBYE, EVERYBODY! THIS IS THE END!'"

"In another moment he hit the ground with the kerplunk he expected—but without a sound of any kind. He sank down deep into the ground, then bounced right up again a hundred feet in the air! Down he fell again, to be bounced up fifty feet! Up and down, up and down, over and over!"

"'This is getting monotonous,' thought Sidney. 'I must have fallen on a pile of rubber!'"

"Finally he came to a stop.

"'Whew!' exclaimed Sidney, pinching himself. 'I'm alive! Now to get out of here!'"

"He walked along the soft surface a way, and then he saw a hole in the ground. He peered into it.

"Suddenly, WHOOSH! Sidney was lifted into the air by a huge stream of water. He sat on the end of it, until finally, it gradually let him down, soaking wet.

"'What next, I wonder?' said Sidney, shaking the water from his fur.

"Just then he saw a big round mirror and he looked into it.

"'Hello!' called a deep voice from way down below.

"'Who said that?' asked Sidney.

"'I did,' said the voice. 'I'm Walter Whale. That's my eye you're looking at.'"

"'Oh, a whale, huh?' said Sidney. 'So that wasn't rubber—it was blubber! What are you doing here, anyway?'"

"'I'm stuck in this shallow water,' wailed Walter. 'I'm washed up, I guess.'"

"'Don't give up the ship!' counseled Sidney. 'I was in a much worse spot than you are. But you saved my life, and I, Sidney Shrew, am grateful!'"

"'I wish somebody would save mine,' said Walter. 'But I guess there's no hope.'"

"'Let me think!' said Sidney.

"'Think louder!' pleaded Walter Whale.

"'LET ME THINK!' shouted Sidney, putting his hands behind his back and pacing up and down. 'There must be some way out.'"

"It was beginning to get dark, and a big moon was coming up. Suddenly Sidney had an idea.

"'WHERE'S YOUR EAR, WALTER?' he yelled. 'I WANT TO TELL YOU SOMETHING!'"

"'Up behind my eye,' said Walter. 'Watch out you don't fall in.'"

"'Okay, I've got it,' said Sidney a moment later, and he started talking.

"In another hour, Walter Whale floated out to sea, while Sidney Shrew stood on the shore waving goodbye. That was the end of their beautiful but short friendship!" finished Professor Owl.

"But how did tiny Sidney set big Walter free?" asked Sammy Squirrel.

"It was easy," said Professor Owl. "Sidney knew that the full moon would bring a high tide. So he told Walter to take the biggest breath he could to make himself light, and float out when the tide was highest," concluded Professor Owl.

"And did Sidney turn over a new leaf and behave himself afterwards?" asked Monroe Mouse.

"Oh, no," said Professor Owl. "The next day, he insulted a grasshopper who then kicked him off the same cliff and—but, oh well, that's another story!" said the Professor with a sly grin.
